

Salsa Arc de Tri-oomph™ Brake Booster

WARNING

Do not try to install this item if you do not understand the instructions or if you do not have the proper tools. Please have this item installed by the professional, experienced mechanic at your local bike shop. Remember, these are your brakes!

1. Slide brake arms onto appropriate brake mounting boss.
*Note: Brake mounting bosses must be between 73mm and 100mm apart (center to center) for the Arc de Tri-oomph to fit.
2. Slide mounting bolt with washer through each hole on the Arc de Tri-oomph with the heads of the bolts facing the same direction as the Salsa logo. Slide a shouldered spacer onto each bolt with the small end facing away from the Arc de Tri-oomph. An additional spacer inserted between the Arc de Tri-oomph and the shouldered spacer may be necessary for the Arc de Tri-oomph not to interfere with the brake arms' movement. For best performance, use as few spacers as possible to position the Arc de Tri-oomph as close as possible to the brakes.
*Note: Two sets of mounting bolts are supplied with the Arc de Tri-oomph. Use the longer bolts unless they bottom out before tightening down on the Arc de Tri-oomph. This will ensure proper thread engagement and prevent damage to the brake mounting bosses. Achieving the proper combination of spacers and bolts may take a few tries. Taking time now to get it right will pay off later (i.e. when you are riding your bike).
3. Loosely install the assembly onto the bike by threading the mounting bolts into the brake mounting bosses. Do not tighten the bolts yet.
4. Center the Arc de Tri-oomph over the brake mounting bosses and tighten each bolt to a torque of 45-60 in-lbs.
5. Check to make sure the Arc de Tri-oomph does not interfere with the movement of the brake arms.
6. Check assembly for tightness before each ride.
